Four Retrace First Voyage of Columbus

Argentine Amateurs Cruise 17,000 Miles From Spain.

NEW YORK.—Ending a cruise of about 17,000 nautical miles, four amateur sailors arrived here after covering the route of Columbus' first voyage from Plos Palos, Spain, to the island of San Salvador.

After a rest here they planned to add another 10,000 miles to the log on a voyage from New York to Buenos Aires by way of the Antilles and down the coast of South America.

The skipper, a carefree former diplomat "now turning writer" is Ernesto Uriburu, former press attache of the Argentine emlassy in Washington. He says he is writing a book, "in English with a accent."

Uriburu is "captain, owner and cook." His brother Mario, a naval technician, helped build and design the "Gaucho," a double-ended 28-ton ketch with an auxiliary diesel engine.

The other crew members are Julio A. Varone, navigator, and Miguel A. Britos, a newspaper man and photographer.

The ketch, a trim 50-foot craft, left Buenos Aires July 28, 1946, sailed up to Rio de Janeiro and crossed the Atlantic to Dakar, West Africa, in 28 days.

Following the ancient routes of the Spanish and Portuguese navigators, the Gaucho toured the Canary islands, entered the Mediterranean and detoured to the Suez canal.

Uriburu says his voyage from Palos is the first of its kind. Prof. Samuel Morison of Harvard retraced the third voyage of Columbus, from San Lucas de Barrameda to Trinidad and the delta of the Orinoco.

Riding the trade winds, "fishing for salmon and sardine out of a can, and eating bully-beef and mulligan with plenty of onions and garlic," the four Argentines reached San Salvador (named Watling island by the British) in 31 days.

Judge Knows His Trade, And Peddler Knows His

HOUSTON, TEX. — A little question and answer session between a banana peddler and a federal judge ended in a nothing to nothing tie.

"How many stars in the flag?" the judge asked the peddler, who wants to become a U. S. citizen.

The man thought hard for a moment.

"Don't know," he said.

"All right," said the judge, "how many stripes in the flag?"

"Don't know," was the reply.

The judge started to dismiss the peddler when he interrupted.

"Wait a minute, judge," he said, "How many bananas on a stalk?"

"I'm afraid I don't know," said the puzzled judge.

"See," said the peddler triumphantly, "bananas is my business. The flag is your business."

The judge, his dignity a bit ruffled, advised the peddler to study American history more thoroughly.

Pay Violations Disclosed; U. S. Recovers Millions

WASHINGTON. — The labor department said that it had uncovered 18 million dollars in wages, "illegally withheld" from 311,236 workers in the year ended June 30.

So far, it said, 15,000 employers have paid up $8,864,000 and 5,000 have done nothing.

The department reported that it had found minimum wage, overtime or child labor violations in 20,570, or 51 per cent, of 40,350 plants inspected during the year under the wage-hour and public contracts acts. The laws impose restrictions on employing minors and require a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour and time and a half pay for work after 40 hours a week. They apply to firms in interstate business.

William R. McComb, administrator of the wage-hour and public contracts division, said the inspectors covered about 7 per cent of the estimated 550,000 establishments and about 8 per cent of the 21,500,000 workers employed covered by the acts.

Noting that most violations resulted from failure to pay for overtime, McComb said this often was due to improperly classifying employes as exempt.

Chutist Gets Comedown, Boy Leaps From 200-Foot Tower

NEWPORT BEACH, CALIF. — Once, at least, to most every boy comes the day when he decides he'll take a shot at defying gravity.

Mrs. Marge Hammer says her son, Richard Reicher, 12, did it up right. The conventional umbrella-from-a-housetop method wasn't for him. She said he strapped a war surplus parachute to his shoulders, climbed to the top of a 200-foot radar tower near the Newport Beach high school and was carried into space by the billowing 'chute when he pulled the ripcord.

Richard reported that the start was fun but the jolting landing, which bruised most of his body, made him decide that once was enough. To make sure of this Mrs. Hammer cut the parachute up and is making it into a nylon dress.

Hindus Are Given Credit as Discoverers of Gunpowder

NEW YORK.—The Chinese have been wrongly getting credit for inventing gunpowder, says Dr. Vaman R. Kokatnur, consulting chemist of New York City.

Historical evidence indicates that the Hindus in India used gunpowder, firearms, flame-throwers, smoke screens and sneezing powder as early as the fourth century B. C., he told the American Chemical society convention. And there is no proof, he added, that the Chinese used them until 800 or 900 years later.

Suggestions Listed to Aid Cat in Keeping Nine Lives

NEW YORK.—Cats are not the self-sufficient breed they are supposed to be, it would appear from a notice sent out by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Eugene Berlinghoff, the society's executive assistant, noted an increase in the number of emergency calls for Manhattan's 100,000 cats.

Then he listed some pointers on how to help the cats maintain their nine-life tradition.

Owners should keep screens in windows, to prevent the cats from jumping or falling. Poison for rats or bugs should be hidden—cats are curious. The owners should put identification tags on their cats. Otherwise, they are fair game for seizure and disposal.

Prepare for Return Of Unknown Soldier

His Body to Be Brought Home Sometime in 1949.

WASHINGTON. — Under present war department plans, America's Unknown Soldier of World War II will be brought home from overseas near the end of 1949 to lie in honor in Arlington national cemetery.

In Arlington he would rest with the Unknown Soldier of World War I, whose inscription reads that he is known "but to God."

Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Larkin, army quartermaster general, said that this second symbol of American men and women who lost their identity in the supreme sacrifice for the country will represent army, navy, marines, air force, coast guard—enlisted man and officer.

Just as it is intended that no one shall ever know in what branch of the armed forces he served, the general said that it is to remain ever secret in which theater he died.

At some rendezvous when the time comes, nine bodies—each unidentified—will be brought from nine zones of combat in the east and west, and from these one will be selected for the nation's homage.

The homecoming of this Unknown Soldier will not be held until all of the war dead who have been identified, and whose relatives wish them returned, have reached this country.

It is planned to bring back only those bodies definitely identified, and of these there are 285,000 army war dead buried overseas. Between 25,000 and 30,000 bodies of sailors and marines lie in known graves.

The search for the missing still goes on, and it is expected that about 18,000 more army dead will be located—many of them airmen lost in isolated places. It is estimated that about 16,350 bodies will never be recovered. The navy lost about 50 to 60 per cent of its total 66,700 combat dead at sea.

At present the army has 17,000 unknown soldiers. The number of unknown sailors was not available. Efforts are continuing to establish their identity.

72,707 Foreign Brides Admitted Since War End

PHILADELPHIA. — A total of 72,707 war brides was admitted to the United States up to last July 1, the bureau of immigration reported.

The bureau said it did not have a breakdown of the figures by nations, except for Germany, but that most of the brides came from Great Britain, France, Italy, Australia and New Zealand. As wives of American citizens they were admitted to this country without regard to immigration quotas.

Since December, 1945, a total of 733 wives of American citizens have arrived in this country from Germany, the bureau said. Although it has no record, the bureau said, it was safe to assume that the majority were wives of American soldiers.

In addition, 854 German girls were admitted in excess of the quota under the so-called fiances act, to marry American servicemen.

Mental Clinics Found Aid To Veterans of Last War

NEW YORK. — Fewer veterans from World War II are being hospitalized for mental disorders than was the case after World War I, it was disclosed here.

Dr. Nils B. Hersloff, chief of the neuropsychiatric division of the local Veterans' administration office, said establishment of mental hygiene clinics accounts for the drop in hospitalization.

Dr. Hersloff said about 70 per cent of those treated on a clinical basis will make a social recovery and economic adjustment.

U. S. Personal Debt Jumps Three Billions to New Peak

NEW YORK.—The American people are three billion dollars deeper in debt than at the first of the year, the Institute of Life Insurance reported.

The rise in personal debt so far this year is a continuation of the 1946 trend when the total increased 8.1 billion dollars, the biggest annual rise on record, the institute said.

Debts used in the study consisted of mortgages on homes and farms, loans on life insurance policies and consumer credit.
